

Exercise 12 – Packaging it all up

Objective

By the end of this exercise you should be able to generate jar files from your source code

Overview

- Choose two of your pieces of work, one command line based and one GUI based
- Generate a jar file for each of them

- Use the command line to generate the jar file for the command line based java program

Hint: Remember that you will need to include some manifest information yourself

- Use eclipse for the GUI based java program

Hint: If you are loading in external files in your program (such as the Part B of the GUI exercise then you may end up with IO Exceptions if they have not been handled correctly in the code!)
